

Toddlers

Hello July! Can you believe how fast June flew by!? The weather this past month has been insane so we were a bit bummed about not getting to the library like we planned. On the other hand the toddlers were very busy learning all about the different animals, from what they were called, looked like, and even sounded like. We had various activities from repeating animal sounds, counting animals, making arts and crafts, and doing animal puzzles. The toddlers also got to enjoy playing in the water as the days have gotten much hotter, much earlier!

The month of July our theme is Water. We will get to enjoy lots of water play out on the playground as well as do many fun activities surrounding water. For example one activity we will do making water sensory toys. We will use a container and add different things in with water. This teaches toddlers cause and effect. If I put this in the container it will do this.

Fun activity to do at home:

Mentos and Coke Experiment. Toddlers love to participate in different experiments and see the outcome of what happens, watch the joy on their face when the bottle contents shoots up into the air like a volcano.

Important Notes:

- Please take home water day clothing on Friday's along with blankets to be washed.
- Look for field trip signs on the door as well as emails.
- Please check tadpoles everyday for things that your child may need.
